Loving all parts of God's creation

One of the first Bible verses I recall starts, "For God so loved the world." Today, we are called to love the world that God loves.

J. Richard Thomas

Care of creation is an important way for Christians to love the world. We know that God is bringing renewal to this world, and we are to join God in bringing healing and hope.

This summer, work was done to help bring healing to the Mill Creek, which flows through the Lancaster Campus. By extension, the work also brought healing to the downstream watershed, including the Chesapeake Bay.

After the start of school, Lancaster Campus students in biological science classes in middle and high school were educated about the stream restoration project. They also helped to plant about 250 native trees to complete the project.

We are also called to join with God in loving all the people of the world. Examples of our joining with God in this issue of Bridges include trips LMS students took this past summer to connect with communities in South Africa and Germany.

We talk about local and global student connections, and yet, in our ever more interconnected world, the line between local and global becomes blurred as global students become part of the local community and local students move to other parts of the globe. In any case, being together, whether from across the street or around the world, enriches all and prepares all for life and witness in a global village.

Creation care and global-local connections help meet our graduate profile that envisions our graduates to be stewards of the natural environment and to be globally-minded.

Finally, they are empowered to live with a sense of curiosity, wonder and mystery as they join with God at work in our world. ❖

Restoring the Mill Creek

The only thing freshman Jazleen Jones ever planted before in her life were some flowers.

But in September, Jones and about 200 other LMS students helped plant almost 250 trees and shrubs along the banks of the recently-restored Mill Creek.

“I thought it was a lot of fun, and we got dirty,” Jones said.

Students from grades 6-12 participated in the planting day, joining with volunteers from the Lancaster County Conservation District and Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

The work is the last leg of a summer project by the conservation district to re-grade and restore the Mill Creek.

April 2013

The portion of the project that flows through the Lancaster Campus underwent a transformation under the watchful eye of Matt Kofroth, watershed coordinator for the Lancaster County Conservation District.

Kofroth's team worked on the project throughout the summer and were on campus during the planting day to teach the students about the changes made to the Mill Creek and guide them in the proper way to plant trees.

The biggest difference to the Mill Creek is the change to its banks. Previously, the bank was vertical, but now it contains a gradual slope that Kofroth said will prevent erosion and allow the creek to flood naturally.

The conservation district also added stones and a mudsill to the creek to increase the fish habitat and aid the overall ecosystem. The work also eliminated invasive species and replaced them with native plants.

"What we are doing today will compliment everything we did over the summer," Kofroth said during the planting day. "These trees and shrubs will serve as the first line of defense."

The trees and shrubs help provide shade to the stream and help protect it from pollution. Their roots will also help to stabilize the banks.

The work completed on campus is part of a bigger project that included parts of the Mill Creek down to Strasburg Pike.

The project was funded through $200,000 worth of federal and state grants, obtained by the conservation district.

Lancaster Campus Principal Elvin Kennel said partnering in the project was a no-brainer.

"It is very clear to people who would have looked at the stream before to now see the gentleness of the banks and the new features," he said.

August 2013

Senior Katie Adams said she was amazed by the difference in the Mill Creek. Her forestry class last spring studied the waterway intensively, from the erosion and flooding to the wildlife habitat.

Breisinger and his group modeled how to properly dig the holes for the young trees and protect them with plastic tubes.

He enjoyed getting the chance to be out of the classroom and said planting the trees with his peers created a sense of accomplishment.

“I thought it was cool that my school would do this,” he said. “I don’t know too many other schools that would.”

Kennel said the planting day allows students to connect more with what they are learning in class and the campus.

“I think they will all take a piece of this with them,” he said.

The work ties into the graduate profile of LMS to foster the desire in students to practice stewardship of all that God has entrusted to them, including the natural environment.

In addition to the student volunteers, former science teachers and alumni, Charles Longenecker and Leon Good, also stopped by to help plant trees.

Longenecker said he decided to help after finding out the work wouldn’t be too strenuous.

After a group of students took a break for chapel, Longenecker made the most of the quiet to plant a few trees on his own and take in the beauty around him.

“Oh my, what a change,” he said. “This bank used to be vertical and it was overrun.”

Moving forward, Kennel said there is still some signage about the work that needs to be installed by the Mill Creek. He added that LMS is also planning to water the plants to help offset the mortality rate and will do “stem-planting” in the spring to further solidify the bank.

“It far exceeds anything that we would have imagined,” he said. ❖

Singing in # South Africa

Tuck Ryan could pick from a multitude of incredible experiences when he reflects on the Campus Chorale trip to South Africa.

But the one that rushes to the forefront of the 2013 graduate's mind isn't of an inspirational concert or of interacting with the wildlife at a game reserve.

Instead, it's of an impromptu performance at a McDonald's in Rustenberg.

"Not only did all the workers and the manager stop and listen, but they danced and sang along," Ryan said of the chorale's performance of Shoshaloza, a traditional South African folk song. "Seeing the enjoyment on their faces and their willingness to pause from their busy work and join us in song is a lesson for all of us to remember to take time for those simple things in life that give us joy."

Learning to connect with the South African community, especially through song, was one of the main concepts director Marcella Hostetler hoped to instill in her choir during the 17-day trip.

Hostetler dreamed of taking a choir to South Africa to experience the passion, sound and movement of the music that she fell in love with while she was a student at Goshen College.

She was forever changed by the country's concept of "ubuntu," which means that people only truly exist by being in community with others.

"I was impressed with the power of singing and the joy and strength it brought to the people," Hostetler said. "In South African culture, chorale music is a reflection of a cherished way of life, a way that we know is modeled through Christ."

This summer Hostetler's dream

Workers at a McDonald's in Rustenberg sing along with Campus Chorale members.

"South Africa has a singing tradition that is unmatched anywhere else in the world. It seems as though music and pitches are not as important as movement and the spirit of each individual." — Jonathan Sauder, 2013 graduate became a reality when she led a group of 30 members of the Lancaster Mennonite Campus Chorale to South Africa from June 10-27. Campus Chorale is a group of select juniors and seniors that practiced and performed together throughout the 2012-13 school year. This trip was the final LMS experience for the members of the choir who graduated this spring.

The choir stopped at several schools around Johannesburg and Pretoria to learn more about the African music culture and to share their music as well, creating a unique educational experience.

The students were overwhelmed by the responses they received at the various concerts throughout the trip. As soon as the students began to sing, the crowd would join in with clapping, snapping and dancing, experiencing each note with the chorale.

Nathaniel Kratz, 2013 graduate, tries out a drum at the market at Chameleon Village.

“They love music and singing and dancing, and it just make me love it all the more too,” senior Alyse Yoder said.

In addition to stops at several schools, the students visited the Pilanesberg Game Reserve, Chameleon Village, the Apartheid Museum, the Indian Ocean and Soweto, where they learned about both apartheid and post-apartheid South Africa. The chorale also spent a weekend at Hope Valley Farm, a sugar cane plantation, and had the opportunity to present the message and sing during a Zulu church service.

Junior Maria Waterfield said the visible transformation of the group was incredible and that she is proud of her fellow chorale members.

“We have learned and grown so much in our music in the last year and especially over the course of this trip,” she said. “We are no longer afraid to move, our sound is so much bigger, and we connect much more to the meaning of our music.” ❖

Seniors Sophia Mast and Aubrey Haller practice a new dance with friends from a student choir at Lebone II School.

Students experience Germany as part of exchange program

Nine LMS students and high school teacher Jonathan Metzler participated in an exchange visit with the Kreisgymnasium school in Bad Krozingen, Germany, this summer. Students from the two schools have visited each other seven times in the past 13 years to promote cultural understanding and practice language.

Sophomore Rudolph Rigano III said he wanted to go because he hosted a German student in 2012 and wanted to see him again. Senior Isaac King was more interested in improving his knowledge of the German language.

The LMS students stayed with hosts at Kreisgymnasium to experience the culture and foods.

“I loved it dearly and really want to go again because I had such a strong connection with my exchange student,” freshman Faith Dinger said.

The group also spent four days in Berlin visiting landmarks such as the Sachsenhausen concentration camp and took day trips to Strasbourg, Basel, Heidelberg and Staufen.

“It was a once in a lifetime trip and the bonds formed are unlike any other,” senior Emily Pautler said.

Celebrating Achievements

YODER TO LEAD COMMUNITY PEACEMAKING BOARD

LMS Assistant Superintendent Miles Yoder was named the chair of the board of directors for the Center for Community Leadership in Lancaster. The Center, like LMS, believes in restorative justice as a way to deal with individuals who break the law. The Center works to bring offenders and victims together to reconcile and work out a solution that brings healing to both parties.

LMS NAMED READERS' CHOICE

LMS was once again named Favorite Private School in Lancaster Newspapers' 13th annual Readers' Choice Awards, helping to bolster the school's reputation for offering an excellent education in a Christ-centered environment.

STUDENT'S PHOTOGRAPH SELECTED BY LANDIS HOMES

Meghan Good, a 2013 graduate, was chosen by Landis Homes Retirement Community to be the 2013 Art Student Award winner. Good was chosen for her color photograph, "Amusement Park Memory." The piece depicts the upper portion of a very colorfully decorated amusement park ride that she captured on a trip to Texas. The piece will become a part of Landis Homes' permanent collection.

SENIOR DEPARTMENT AWARDS

The faculty honored the dedication and success of twelve seniors with the top department awards during the high school awards assembly last spring. The seniors recognized were: Colleen Andrews, agriculture; Deok Hoon Kim, art; Anson Lam, business; Laurel Bornman, English; Christina Gantt, family and consumer science; Nick Weaver, mathematics; Andrew Pauls, music; Brandon DaSilva, health and physical education; Isaac King, science; Megan Baak, social studies; Andrew Wassall, technology; and Monica Beiler, world language.

LMS EARNS SPRING SPORTSMANSHIP AWARD

For the second consecutive year, LMS was honored with the Lancaster-Lebanon League Spring Sportsmanship Award, showcasing the school's belief that sports and other co-curricular activities help develop skills of leadership, character and growth in self-understanding and Christian values.

Three spring teams won the sportsmanship awards for their respective sports: boys volleyball, boys tennis, and track and field.

Ian Schwabe

MILLSTREAM CLAIMS STUDENT PRESS AWARDS

Junior Ian Schwabe earned first place honors in the Newspaper in Education 8th Annual Student Press Awards for best cartoon. Schwabe's recognition highlighted a solid showing from the 2012-13 Millstream staff, which also included a third place for front page and a third place for best news story.

WASSALL EXCELS IN DRIVING COMPETITION

Andrew Wassall, a 2013 graduate, tied for first place in the written portion of the 20th annual Lancaster-Lebanon Safe Driving Competition sponsored by the Center for Traffic Safety earlier this year.

BOYS VOLLEYBALL PLACES TWO ON ALL-STATE TEAM

2013 graduates Jerel Sensenig and Nick Weaver earned spots on the Class AA all-state volleyball team, highlighting a successful spring season for the boys volleyball team. Sensenig, an outside hitter, finished the season with 314 kills and 94 digs, and Weaver, a setter, finished with 858 assists and 95 digs.

Weaver, a four-year starter, also earned a spot on the all-league team. ❖

Two win honors at PA Computer Fair competitions

Junior Cameron Andrews won first place honors at the state and regional levels of the Pennsylvania Computer Fair earlier this year.

Andrews, the LMS student webmaster, won the competition for his work on a new section of the website designed and implemented to market the school to prospective international students. Andrews received a cash award for his winning effort on behalf of LMS.

The regional competition is for all of the schools serviced by the Lancaster Lebanon IU 13.

BEFORE AND AFTER SCHOOL CARE

Finding flexibility

Looking back, Kendra Hartman is not sure how she would have managed without the Before and After School Care program offered at the Locust Grove Campus.

Hartman's daughter, Sarah, attended the program throughout her time at the PreK-8 campus and is now a freshman at the Lancaster Campus.

The program, which allows students to come early and stay later than the school day, gave the Hartman family the flexibility it needed to mesh schedules.

"It was a necessity," Kendra Hartman said. "With work, I couldn't leave before a certain time."

In a commitment to help more families, LMS expanded its Before and After School Care programs to the Kraybill and New Danville campuses.

Judi Mollenkof, principal of the Locust Grove and Kraybill campuses, said the expansion is the result of interest and requests from parents.

"This enables parents who need these services, particularly those who work, to enroll their children to stay at the school instead of having to make other arrangements for after school care," Mollenkof said.

Hartman said the program gave her daughter extra time to play on the playground and burn off energy before she had to go home to do homework. As she got older, the program provided quiet time to do school work and assist the instructor with younger students.

"It seemed to work out really well," she said. "I don't know what I would have done otherwise." ❖

Eagle Scout projects spiffy up campuses

The Lancaster and Kraybill campuses underwent some outdoor renovations throughout the summer as part of two students' Eagle Scout projects.

Sophomore Ryan Kindelberger placed a pathway at the Kraybill Campus from the playground to the school while junior Jon Harker installed a patio and picnic tables outside the Gym A lobby and the concession stand by the turf field at the Lancaster Campus.

"Kraybill has done so much for me and has been such a huge influence on my life ... that I just wanted to give back," Kindelberger said. "I'm hoping that it's just something that makes life a little easier for everyone."

Harker said he heard people talking about how there were no places to sit to eat by the concession stand and came up with the idea.

"It was cool to be able to help out," he said.

Faculty recognized for years of service

Every spring, Lancaster Mennonite recognizes faculty and staff members during the Staff Appreciation Celebration for their continued dedication to the LMS mission.

Pauline Stoltzfus, LMS bookkeeper, was honored with a slideshow of photos of her throughout her 45 years.

Teachers Janet Banks, high school English; Dennis Kauffman, high school Spanish; and Mick Steckback, middle school Bible and social studies, were honored for 35 years. For 30 years of service: Jim Baer, maintenance.

For 25 years of service: Geoffrey Groff, high school health and physical and education; and Marlin Groff, CFO. For 20 years of service: Amy Frantz, bus driver, and Erma Shultz, accounts receivable.

For 15 years of service: Marie Burkholder, kindergarten; Kathryn Ciaccia, art; Brent Hartzler, Spanish; Barbara Josephian, social studies; Alice Lauver, ELL and language arts; Lee Thurber, health and physical education; Wendy Weinstein, art; and Nancy Witmer, bus driver.

For 10 years of service: Kent Fellenbaum, Media Center; Deanna Grager, music; Kristine Long, 5th grade; and Betty Mumma, Spanish.

The LMS family also said good-bye this spring to three faculty members who entered into retirement.

Jan M. McDowell, learning support, retired after 29 years of helping students succeed.

Karen L. Diffenbach served as a mathematics teacher at the high school for 14 years. Mumma retired after 10 years.

Alumnus pens off-Broadway play

Well-known Mennonite author, publisher and playwright Merle Good, 1964, Lancaster, believes his newest creation, The Preacher and the Shrink, is the best play he's ever written.

Good's work is set to open Nov. 2 at the Beckett Theatre in New York, an off-Broadway theater on West 42nd Street a few blocks from Times Square. It's run will end on Jan. 5.

The play is set in Middle America in the fall of 2009. It looks at the strain and stress grief brings to family relationships and questions if human beings truly listen to one another.

It focuses on an estranged relationship between a father, who happens to be a pastor, and his daughter, examining if they can find healing and ever trust one another again.

The show will run at 8 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays with afternoon matinees on Saturdays and Sundays. Tickets can be purchased through Telecharge.com. Group rates are available.

LMS is organizing a bus trip to New York to view Good's play on Nov. 30. The trip will include a lunch and discussion with Good, time to explore the city and the play. ## Class of 1963 celebrates 50 years

The Class of 1963 celebrated its 50th reunion with a weekend jam-packed with events at the Lancaster Campus, Aug. 30-31. More than 80 classmates attended the various events.

The festivities started Friday with an informal time to catch up with one another and enjoy refreshments. The group then gathered Saturday morning for lunch in the Alumni Dining Hall and a silent auction to raise funds for a gift for the school. They went on tours of the campus in the afternoon and held a banquet that evening. During the banquet, the group participated in classmate trivia and several classmates shared of life experiences. The reunion committee also created an updated yearbook to share the continuing stories of each class member.

Thank you for impacting students' lives!

With deepest appreciation, we acknowledge you, alumni and friends of Lancaster Mennonite School, for your investment in a Christ-centered education. You, along with many other individuals, businesses and congregations, gave $2,439,432 during the 2012-13 school year. Your gifts are changing lives and transforming our world. Every dollar counts!

LMS celebrated its 71st commencement on June 1 with 162 graduates in the Class of 2013. Pictured are the 2013 Senior Dedication and Commencement speakers: Jonathan Sauder, Laurel Bormman, the Rev. Al Taylor, Gabe Imhoff and Anson Lam.

Bridges to the Future

Transforming the Iron Bridge

Come witness the unveiling of the historic Iron Bridge on the Lancaster Campus in a never-before-seen way during a special art show Nov. 15.

The stately Iron Bridge will be transformed into a futuristic piece of art. The bridge will be wrapped in colorful fabrics and feature a dynamic light show and shadow art drama performance by LMS students.

The masterpiece was envisioned and designed by artist J. Emmett Murphy, 1962, LMS Technical Director Ryan Rohrer, 1995, and LMS students. The event will kickoff our new campaign for students, Bridges to the Future.

Transforming Melodies

November 15-16

The 2013 Fall Festival and Homecoming, "Transforming Melodies," will offer a chorus of fun, food and sounds for the whole family with specialty music events throughout the weekend. Come join the celebration and help support students and Christ-centered education.

Transforming Melodies

A unique "Music through the Ages" concert will be held at 7 p.m. Friday in the Calvin and Janet High Fine Arts Center. The concert will showcase the varied musical talents of LMS alumni and students. Opera performer Madeline Bender, 1989, will headline the show that spans the evolution of musical styles.

On Saturday morning, eight performance groups will create an outdoor coffeehouse amidst the FFA Country Breakfast, Iron Bridge 5K and 3v3 Tournament. The "Keeping the Tempo" performances will be held on two outdoor stages from 9 a.m. to noon and feature several alumni and student groups.

Hess's Barbecue and FFA Country Breakfast

Enjoy two signature meals during our Fall Festival celebration: Hess's Barbecue Friday night and the FFA Country Breakfast, prepared and served by students, Saturday morning. Barbecue meals are $10 for adults and $5 for children between the ages of 3 and 12. Take out is available from 2:30 to 8 p.m. and eat in is 4:30 to 8 p.m. The country breakfast is served in the Gym A lobby between 7:30 and 10:30 a.m.

3v3 Basketball Tournament

Support our student athletes through the 3v3 basketball tournament to benefit the Brent Nauman Memorial Endowment. The tournament, which features men's and women's divisions, will begin at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. The endowment supports keeping an athletic trainer on campus for student athletes.

Benefit Dinner and Specialty Auction

The weekend wraps up with the Benefit Dinner and Specialty Auction Saturday at 5 p.m. Registered guests will enjoy fine dining and the auction in the Alumni Dining Hall. The auction will feature original artwork from Velma Magill, a personalized cooking class from Good Cooking Store and the popular gingerbread "Cookie Kids."

Tickets are available by contacting Keri Bloom at (717) 509-4459, ext. 701, or bloomkg@lancastermennonite.org.

Iron Bridge 5K Run/Walk

The 8th annual Iron Bridge 5K Run/Walk will begin at 9:30 a.m. Saturday and features a new, half-mile, Kids Fun Run. Register by Nov. 6 at www.ironbridgerun.org for a reduced fee.

For more information, contact Tina Campbell at (717) 509-4459, ext. 709, or campbelltk@lancastermennonite.org.
